A student and their enrolment in a subject is described by a unique name, subject code, and enrolment date.

A student is described by a student name, address, an optional phone number, and an email.

A student is identified by a student code.

A student can enrol in many running subjects.

A student has a recorded enrolment date for each subject.

A student is generalised as an undergraduate or a postgraduate.

An undergraduate student can have one optional project.

A postgraduate student can have one optional thesis, and has one supervisor.

A subject is described by total credits, a subject title and can have zero or more assignments.

A subject can be identified by a subject code.

A subject has a qualifier of year and session. For each year and session, a subject can be offered.

A subject can be selected by many students.

A subject can have zero or one running subject. Each running subject has a web link.